

OUR BETTER HEALTH

HOME ABOUT
BABY STEPS

Diet, Health, Fitness, Lifestyle & Wellness

11 Little Tricks to Stop Being Socially Awkward

November 6, 2016 by misterpete4u | Leave a comment

Even the most confident communicators can sometimes feel insecure at a party, meeting, or other friendly get-together. Use these pro tips to summon your swagger, or at least feel more self-assured.

Play host

Put yourself more at ease by taking the lead socially. "Introduce people to each other," suggests Dianna Booher, author of Communicate With Confidence: How to Say It Right the First Time and Every Time. "Take hats and coats and invite other guests to help themselves to the food." People will appreciate your thoughtfulness, and you'll always find yourself in the center of things because people will be "coming and going" all around you. Check out the habits that can help nix social anxiety.

Bring a buddy

By attending events with a friend, you get the opportunity to introduce your pal to small groups as you join them, offering an intriguing "tag line" about them. "Your buddy can return the favor in your introduction," Booher says. "These 'partner' introductions seem much less intrusive and

SEARCH

RECENT POSTS

- Migraines linked to bacteria in mouth
- 11 Little Tricks to Stop Being Socially Awkward
- 7 Ways to Flip Your Negative Mindset This Fall and Winter
- Fun Fact Friday
- 10 Tricks Successful People Use To Stay Calm In Stressful Situations

age antioxidants attitude brain cancer children depression self-serving and give you an interesting way to connect with others." Don't miss these tips for sharpening your small talk skills.

Embrace an opportunity

Stretching yourself beyond your comfort zone often has a real payoff. The fact is that trying new experiences, even if you have to endure a bit of discomfort, can lead to personal growth and inner strength, according to recent Psychology Today article. If you're feeling lonely, try some of these strategies for making a human connection.

Make a fashion statement

A standout piece of jewelry, wild shoes or a unique jacket can serve as an immediate conversation starter, because most people will comment on it. "And when others ask, 'What's this?' or 'What's the story behind this piece?' be ready with an intriguing line that makes them say, 'Tell me more,'" Booher says. Check out these secrets to accessorizing, according to fashion stylists.

Learn to listen intently

If it's not already obvious, people love to talk about themselves. Use that your advantage to keep a conversation flowing. "Just keep asking follow-up questions and show genuine interest," she says. Check out the things all good listeners do daily.

diet energy

exercise fruit

happiness heart

inflammation kids

longevity nutrition

nuts obesity Omega-3

sleep spices stress success sugar tea

Uncategorized

vegetables vitamins

weight-loss

CATEGORIES

Select Category

www.OurBetterHealth.org

ARCHIVES

November 2016

October 2016

September 2016

August 2016

July 2016

June 2016

May 2016

April 2016

March 2016

February 2016

January 2016

December 2015

November 2015

October 2015

Remember names

To earn respect from a new acquaintance, remember and then use that person's name. "There are many techniques to help you remember," says Daniel L. Kopp, MD, a family physician in New Hartford, New York. "Try associating the name or the person's appearance with something that you can easily connect it to." The most important thing you can do in remembering names, however, is to listen very carefully as you're hearing it the first time, perhaps even repeating it to confirm that you heard it correctly. You can say, "Amanda, nice to meet you." "Often, social nervousness has us so focused on what we're going to say next that we're not tuning in to the name given at all," Dr. Kopp says.

Be humble

Resist the urge to initiate conversations by bragging or just generally talking too much about yourself. "Think to yourself: 'I'm a very interesting person and have done many interesting things, but I don't need to tell others about my experiences unless they're truly interested,'" Dr. Kopp says. "Quiet confidence is almost always valued more than aggressive domination or monopolization of a conversation," he adds. Check these signs you could be a bad listener.

Take stock of your best traits

Before entering a social situation—whether it's in person or online—take a moment to reflect on your best qualities and characteristics and remind yourself that you're a good and decent person, deserving of another's friendship, Dr. Kopp says. This strategy will be confidence builder. If you're meeting in person, don't forget that your body language is another way to project confidence.

Have one great fact ready

Kimberly Friedmutter, a clinical hypnotherapist with a practice in Malibu, California, says offering up a tidbit about yourself opens the doors to a flowing conversation. "Keep an interesting go-to fact about yourself at the ready," Freidmutter says. "People love to engage with a quip, a story, something interesting for an icebreaker." It could be something as random as, "I'm parked at a one-hour meter, so if you see me dash out suddenly, that would be why!"

Create some imagery

September 2015

August 2015

July 2015

June 2015

May 2015

April 2015

March 2015

February 2015

January 2015

December 2014

November 2014

October 2014

September 2014

August 2014

July 2014

June 2014

May 2014

April 2014

March 2014

February 2014

January 2014

December 2013

November 2013

October 2013

September 2013

August 2013

July 2013

June 2013

May 2013

April 2013

March 2013

February 2013

January 2013

December 2012

November 2012

October 2012

September 2012

August 2012

July 2012

June 2012

Take the edge off a social situation by using your imagination. "When feeling awkwardly intimidated, simply look at those around you and imagine how they looked as children," says Friedmutter. "The image you conjure in your mind will automatically relax you into approaching others without worry."

Consider texting more

Studies have found that friends and partners who send affectionate messages are closer than their non-texting equivalents, according to an article in the Washington Post. Get familiar with the situations in which texting has the advantage over calling.

BY ERICA LAMBERG

source: www.rd.com

About these ads

72% of manufacturing companies using Insightly saw a return on their investment in less than 3 months.*

#1 Online Customer Relationship Management for Small and Growing Businesses

insightly SIGN UP FOR A FREE TRIAL

*Source: TechValldata survey

- May 2012
- April 2012
- March 2012
- February 2012
- January 2012
- December 2011
- November 2011
- October 2011

META

- Register
- Log in
- Entries RSS
- Comments RSS
- WordPress.com

November 2016

M	T	W	T	F	S	S
	1	2	3	4	5	6
7	8	9	10	11	12	13
14	15	16	17	18	19	20
21	22	23	24	25	26	27
28	29	30
« Oct

Share this:

f Facebook
t Twitter
G+ Google
P Pinterest
t Tumblr

in LinkedIn 1
Reddit Pocket
Email
Print

★ Like

9 bloggers like this.

Related

- How To Boost Your Confidence: 6 Scientific Ways To Feel Better About Yourself
- The 3 Most Common Causes of Insecurity and How to Beat Them In "self confidence"
- Promise Yourself These 8 Things For A Happy Life In "happiness"

In "confidence"

Categories: socializing | Tags: communication, confidence, self confidence, socializing | Permalink.

Be the first of your friends to like this

Leave a Reply

Enter your comment here...

← Previous Post

Next Post →

FOLLOW BLOG VIA EMAIL

Enter your email address to follow this blog and receive notifications of new posts by email.

Enter your email address

Follow

NETWORKED BLOGS

NetworkedBlogs

Blog: Our Better Health

Topics: Lifestyle, Health, Diet

Follow my blog

---

Create a free website or blog at WordPress.com.

Top

⊞